SM-89
William Chesley House
Charlotte Hall
Private

Circa 1800 and later

The William Chesley House is significant as a strongly contributing resource within the boundaries of the Charlotte Hall National Register district. Both the form and setting of the house are well-preserved. The distinctive form of the house is the result of a series of construction periods. Because the exterior of the house has been sheathed with modern materials and the underside of the house is not accessible, interior access is necessary for accurate dating of the structure.

The chain of title for the quarter acre tract shows that it was a leasehold property owned by the Charlotte Hall School Board of Trustees for many years. It appears to have been one of 120 lots surveyed by virtue of an 1803 Act of Assembly authorizing Charlotte Hall School to lay off a town by the name of Charlotte Ville. This may suggest that the Chesley House was not built on this site until after 1803.

In 1829, the Chesley House lot was leased as "Lot No. 3" to Thomas C. Reeves. Reeves was to occupy the property for a 99 year period at the rent of four dollars per year. In 1833, Reeves leased the lot to Henry Fowler. By that time it was improved by "one frame dwelling house, a shoemaker's shop attached thereto, one log meathouse and one log stable."

The family of Dr. John Richard Thomas Reeves occupied this house for much of the later nineteenth century. As a result, the house became known locally as the "Reeves House." Sometime prior to 1914, John and Henrietta Chesley purchased the lot. During the Chesley ownership of the house, the east room of the south wing served as the Charlotte Hall post office and as a small confectionery shop. Most of Mr. Chesley's customers were students who attended the Charlotte Hall Military Academy.

The William Chesley House is located on the west side of Old Route 5 in the village of Charlotte Hall in St. Mary's County, Maryland. The house is situated close to the road and stands on a small lot completely enclosed by a white picket fence. Two very large trees stand on the east side of the house. One outbuilding stands on the property. The house faces east with the principal gable oriented on a north/south axis.

Built in a series of stages, the house consists of a central, one-and-a-half story main block that appears to date to the eighteenth or early nineteenth century. To the south extends a one-and-a-half story wing. To the north extend two one-story wings. The house is sheathed with modern beaded board siding and is roofed with wood shingles.

The east (main) elevation of the main block is pierced by a six-panel entrance door with a five-light transom. The door architrave consists of plain pilasters with a dentiled cornice. To the north, the wall surface is pierced by two six-over-six sash windows with louvered shutters. One gable roof dormer projects from the roof. The dormer is pierced by a four-over-four light window. This section of the house is finished with a boxed cornice. The southern one-and-a-half story wing is pierced by two six-over-six sash windows with louvered shutters. A gable roof dormer, lit by one six-over-six sash window, pierces the roof slope. A one-story wing, stepped back from the main block of the house, extends to the north. The wing is pierced by two six-over-six sash windows with louvered shutters. Between the main block and the north wing projects a brick chimney. The chimney is covered with stucco scored to imitate ashlar masonry.

The north elevation of the north wing is a flush gable end pierced by one shuttered six-over-six sash window on the first floor and one six-over-six sash window in the eave. To the west of the north wing is the flush gable-end elevation of an adjoining one-story structure. Probably the original kitchen, a large exterior brick chimney with a varying bond pattern of 5/1 and 7/1 stands against the north wall of this building. Extending across a portion of the north elevation of both wings is a shed roof addition sheathed with vertical board siding. This addition is pierced by a partially glazed door and one six-over-six sash window. A flat roof porch supported by square posts that rest on a brick floor extends north of the addition. The roof of the porch is finished with square balusters.

The west elevation of the kitchen wing is pierced by one six-over-six sash

The William Chesley House is significant as a strongly contributing resource within the boundaries of the Charlotte Hall National Register district. Both the form and setting of the house are well-preserved. The distinctive form of the house is the result of a series of construction periods. Because the exterior of the house has been sheathed with modern materials and the underside of the house is not accessible, interior access is necessary for accurate dating of the structure.

The chain of title for the quarter acre tract shows that it was a leasehold property owned by the Charlotte Hall School Board of Trustees for many years. It appears to have been one of 120 lots surveyed by virtue of an Act of Assembly authorizing Charlotte Hall School to lay off a town by the name of Charlotte Ville. The minutes of the Charlotte Hall Board of Trustees of March 18, 1803 instruct N. H. Shaw to survey and lay out the town, dividing the land into lots of a quarter acre each with streets, lanes, and alleys. This may suggest that the Chesley House was not built on this site until after 1803.

In 1829, the Chesley House lot was leased as "Lot No. 3" to Thomas C. Reeves. Reeves was to occupy the property for a 99 year period at the rent of four dollars per year. In 1833, Reeves leased the lot to Henry Fowler. By that time it was improved by "one frame dwelling house, a shoemaker's shop attached thereto, one log meathouse and one log stable."

According to Eleanor Canter, whose family began renting the house from the Reeves family in 1904, this dwelling had always been known as the "Reeves House." Prior to the Canter occupation of the house, the family of Dr. John Richard Thomas Reeves lived here. Reeves, the only child of Thomas Courtney Reeves and Mary Elizabeth Edwards, received his medical training at the University of Maryland. Initially, he and Dr. Thomas A Carrico were associates. Around 1860, Reeves advertised in the St. Mary's Beacon that he could be found at the home of his father in Charlotte Hall. Following the death of Dr. Reeves' wife in the early 1900s, he moved from Charlotte Hall to Chaptico.

7.1 Description

window with louvered shutters. Concrete steps on the west side of the wing lead to the basement below it. The roofline is finished with a boxed cornice. South of the kitchen wing and flush with the exterior wall of the main block is a shed roof infill pierced by a pair of six-light-over-one-panel doors. The main block of the house is pierced by two six-over-six sash windows with louvered shutters, a four-light-over-three-panel door and an octagonal window. A gable roof dormer lit by a four-over-four sash window pierces the roof slope. The southern wing is pierced by two shuttered six-over-six sash windows. The roof slope is pierced by a gable roof dormer lit by a six-over-six sash window.

The south elevation of the kitchen wing is a flush gable end pierced by one six-over-six sash window with louvered shutters and a four-over-four sash window in the eave. The south side of the south wing is pierced by a four-light-over-two-panel door and a multi-light door which open onto a screened porch. An interior brick chimney pierces the roof ridgeline of this flush gable end.

The interior of the house was not accessible. According to Eleanor Canter, who lived in the house in the early 1900s, the plan of the main block consisted of a side hall and single north parlor. Access to the single bedroom on the second floor was possible by means of a winder stair located at the end of the stair hall. From the hall, there was a step down into the south wing. This wing consisted of two rooms on both the first and second floors. From the north parlor of the main block, there were two steps down to the north wing. The wing consisted of one room on the first floor, used as a dining room, and a winder stair to the second floor bedroom. The bedroom was not accessible from any other room in the house. The one-room kitchen was attached to the dining room by means of a small passage. Although a window lights the eave of the kitchen, this space was not accessible.

The one outbuilding located on the property is a smokehouse that stands north of the house. The small structure is supported by a concrete slab and is sheathed with weatherboard siding. The pyramidal roof is covered with wood shingles. A vertical panel door hung on machine made metal hinges pierces the south elevation of the building.

8.6 Significance

Ms. Canter, the former Charlotte Hall postmistress, remembers much about her life as a child here. She vividly recalls the trains that would pass in front of the house next to the picket fence. Often, the engine would remain parked just outside of her family's home as passengers disembarked at the Charlotte Hall platform. On other occasions, the passenger cars would be parked in front of the house as freight was unloaded at the platform.

After the Canter occupation of the property, the Alvey family lived here. Sometime prior to 1914, John and Henrietta Chesley purchased the lot. During the Chesley ownership of the house, the east room of the south wing served as the Charlotte Hall post office and as a small confectionery shop. Most of Mr. Chesley's customers were students who attended the Charlotte Hall Military Academy.

CHESLEY HOUSE
Charlotte Hall
Private

18th and 19th centuries

This small three-part frame house has a one-story, two-bay main block with a steeply angled gable roof. The entrance is at the east end. The center section is three bays in length and 1½ stories in height and is somewhat lower than the first. At the west end stands an exterior chimney that is now partially enclosed by a later one-story, one-bay frame addition. To one side of the house stands a small detached kitchen with an exterior stone and brick chimney.

This property has been included on the National Register of Historic Places, U.S. Department of the Interior, as part of the Charlotte Hall Historic District.
